

Making Our Money Work For A Better World

Half-Day Conference

EcoQuakers Ireland:
A committee of the Religious Society of Friends in Ireland

Open Meeting

Making our money work for a Better World
Wednesday 10 November 2010 3.00pm - 6.30pm

THE CULTIVATE CENTRE, St Andrew's Street Dublin 2

All Welcome

Urgent action is required globally and locally – to finance the transition towards a lower carbon economy, based on renewable principles, and to alleviate poverty. Our savings and the financial reserves of our Churches can make a contribution to this need. But there must also be well-run and well-regulated financial institutions:

to provide security for these savings and to ensure that the finance is directed to where it can make a worthwhile difference.

This meeting is a step towards building a movement in both parts of Ireland to raise awareness about the need for ethically and ecologically sensitive financial services. It will offer an opportunity to learn about the general issues, to meet representatives from some of the providers of financial services which are already engaged in this movement, and to discuss what needs to be done.

It will be of interest to those who manage Church funds, financial service providers and all engaged in the justice, peace and environmental movements.

Chair:

David Kingston (Religious Society of Friends in Ireland)

Panel speakers:

Miles Litvinoff (Ecumenical Council for Corporate Responsibility)

Patrick Hynes (Oikocredit)

Paul Ellis (The Ecology Building Society)

Alex Connor (Triodos Bank)

Light refreshments and time for informal discussion will be provided

Entrance free Wheelchair access

RSVP: Please provide contact details (e-mail address or phone number)
by email: ecoq@gn.apc.org
by post: EcoQuakers, South Belfast Friends Meeting
22 Marlborough Park North, Belfast BT9 6HJ

Please advertise this event through your networks